GEF PRIVATE SECTOR ENGAGEMENT ANNUAL REPORT

1. The GEF Private Sector Engagement Strategy¹ (PSES) (GEF/C.59/07/Rev.01) was approved at the 59th GEF Council Meeting. The PSES includes the reporting framework which specifies the metrics to be used for the purpose of annual reporting to the GEF Council to assess the effectiveness of private sector engagement:

- (a) The number of companies formally engaged in GEF activities (in the process of design, planning meetings, information shared, implementation, technical assistance etc., according to the modality);
- (b) A classification of companies based on the GICS industry code at the level of the industry sector;
- (c) An assessment of the geographies where the private sector engagement has been most effective and least successful;
- (d) The number of multi-stakeholder platforms engaged, their geographic coverage and share of the global market; and
- (e) An appendix of all companies contacted during the period.

2. This annual report covers all projects from GEF-7 and GEF-8 cycle from the period October 1, 2022 to October 31, 2023, that have reached CEO endorsement, including from the SCCF/LDCF, the SGP, MSPs and the GEF Trust Fund. This report does not include the NGI window which is covered in a separate report. The total number of projects assessed is 171.

3. Private sector entities were classified according to the 11 sector classifications of the Global Industry Classification Standard Methodology (GICS):

1. Energy
2. Materials
3. Industrials
4. Consumer Discretionary
5. Consumer Staples
6. Health Care
7. Financials
8. Information Technology
9. Communication Services

¹ The GEF Private Sector Engagement Strategy GEF/C.59/07/Rev.01

10. Utilities

11. Real Estate

4. Each private sector entity was further classified using a typology according to scale, assets, number of employees and geography. For consistency with IEO Evaluations, the same classifications for private sector entities were adopted, with the addition of two classifications to differentiate between small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs) using the IFC definitions²:

- (a) Small enterprises
- (b) Medium-sized enterprises
- (c) Cooperatives
- (d) National corporations
- (e) State-owned / partially state-owned corporations
- (f) National trade and professional organizations
- (g) National chambers of commerce and industry
- (h) Multinational corporations
- (i) Private Foundations

5. The main findings of the report are:

- (a) The total number of private sector entities engaged in GEF-7 and GEF-8 projects during the PSES annual reporting period (October 1, 2022 to October 31, 2023) at the CEO endorsement stage is 1,032 (full list in Appendix A)
- (b) During this period, GEF project investment was $839,035,676 the amount of private sector co-finance is $605,290,126 across the 171 (110 FSPs and 61 MSPs) projects from a total co-finance amount of $6,132,806,739 representing 9.86% of co-finance from all sources
- (c) This figure is down on the GEF-5 percentage of 11%, the GEF-6 percentage of 13% and previous GEF-7 reporting periods of 12%, most likely due to the lack of Impact or Integrated Programs approved to CEO stage during the reporting period. The modal private sector organization classification is national corporations (n=263)
- (d) The modal GICS industry sector is financial (n=224)

ENGAGEMENT WITH MULTI-STAKEHOLDER PLATFORMS

6. A core element of GEF’s PSES is the engagement of multi-stakeholder platforms to provide the scale and resources needed for transformational impact at the system level and beyond the country level projects.

7. The total number of multi-stakeholder platforms engaged in the 171 projects is 18 (Appendix B).

8. The global platforms represented in the project range include those with the largest memberships, revenue and market coverage for any given sector. These include:

- (a) Business for Nature with over 1000 signatory companies and a combined revenue of over $4.7 trillion
- (b) The Alliance to End Plastic Waste with 72 members across the plastics value chain including brand owners, resin producers, converters, waste managers, recyclers and technology providers
- (c) World Cocoa Foundation which has a membership representing over 80 percent of the world's chocolate and cocoa sector
- (d) IDH which brings together over 600 companies and governments and reaching over 4 million farmers in 30 countries
- (e) The Sustainable Fibre Alliance working on the full value chain of cashmere production from the herders in Mongolia to the multinational fashion brands
- (f) The World Business Council for Sustainable Development, with over 200 members, USD 18.5 trillion in combined revenues and over 19 million employees. The WBCSD is engaged across a number of GEF's key Impact and Integrated Programs, notably the FOLUR and Food Systems IPs, the Sustainable Cities IP and the LDCF/SCCF
- (g) BIMCO is an organization for the global shipping community with over 2,000 members in 130 countries representing 62% of global shipping tonnage. Members include local, global, small and large companies
- (h) The Global Dairy Platform consists of dairy companies, associations, scientific bodies and other partners to collaborate pre-competitively in climate change, biodiversity and food systems strategies

ENGAGEMENT WITH WOMEN'S PRIVATE SECTOR NETWORKS³

9. The engagement of women through women's businesses and private sector networks is a valuable contribution in the GEF's goals for gender equity and the active inclusion of women through the GEF portfolio.

10. There were a large number (n=32) of women's private sector networks, cooperatives and associations engaged in GEF projects during the reporting period. There was representation from diverse range of organizations and geographies (full list in Appendix C), including:

- (a) USCOFECI Union of women's fishing cooperatives in Côte d'Ivoire
- (b) Mongolia Women's Business Center (WBC)
- (c) Groupement des Femmes Entrepreneurs de Madagascar (GFEM)
- (d) Women on Boards Network SL (WOBNSL), Sierra Leone
- (e) FEFA (Federation of Women Entrepreneurs and Businesswomen of Benin)

FINDINGS

11. The modal GICS industry sector was financial, covering companies engaged in banking, financial services, consumer finance, capital markets and insurance activities. The 224 organizations in this sector working with GEF projects cover the full gamut of financial institutions from the multinational banks and sovereign funds to specialist climate funds and micro-finance platforms. Finance, and access to finance, is often a major barrier to systemic transformation and is defined by the GEF STAP as a transformational lever, and cited as a lead indicator of systemic change³ where there is evidence of appropriate financial resources increasingly flowing in the directions needed, particularly from mainstream public and private sources. The number, the type and the diverse range of financial organizations and the services provided is a strong indicator of GEF's success in engaging the financial sector as a lever of transformation and importantly provides a strong foundation for the inclusion of services, products, metrics and indicators relevant to the Conventions that GEF serves, especially biodiversity or nature metrics.

12. There are some private sector actors that are under-represented in the GEF portfolio and that could add significantly to project execution, innovation, new business models, connectivity to markets and the delivery of GEBs. These gaps in private sector engagement include:

- (a) Technology companies, which are most present in transport systems (e-mobility) projects and in hydrometeorology applications, but largely absent across the major industry sectors in the GEF portfolio
- (b) The insurance sector, especially their ability to support climate change adaptation measures and create new and innovative models for de-risking investments, is not well represented in this reporting period
- (c) Retailers (online and physical) which have the capacity to reach consumers at scale and promote the adoption of sustainable practices and purchases

13. The 171 projects that reached the CEO approval stage in this reporting period were largely from the GEF-7 cycle and reflect a high percentage of MSPs as opposed to the new integrated programming. The GEF-8 IPs will provide enhanced opportunities to actively contribute to systemic transformations through the IPs. Each IP has a dedicated section for private sector engagement and the integrated approaches are more likely to attract higher levels of investment and broader sectoral interest as businesses seek to deliver the results against their nature and climate commitments.
